Parish Council February

Recreation Ground High priority items on the inspection report had been completed. These include repairs to the see-saw support and to the surrounding fencing. It was noted that substantial repairs were also needed to the tractor which was part of the character of the playground.

Trees Four saplings in the cricket field copse had been planted at silly mid-off - too close to the boundary. Council agreed to investigate fencing around the copse to prevent damage from grass cutting, hedge cutters and dogs. At the subsequent March Council meeting it was agreed to move the trees in the Autumn.

Donation The granddaughter of the late Thelma Franklin had offered the parish a donation in her grandmother's memory. It was agreed that a bench to replace the one near the play area would be appropriate, and a suitable plaque would be fixed to it.

Platinum Jubilee Planning was now well in hand (see page 15). Councillors thought that giving parish children a commemorative present was a dubious idea. In these days of over-consumption, such items merely represent 'stuff' and would be consigned to the back of a cupboard. Other plans include lighting up the cross, a bench, boules court, new footpath (permissive ie with landowner's permission) and seed planting. Parishioners' views are to be sought on a suitable permanent memorial.

Hedges The Chair and Councillor Braund had met the landowner who owns most of the hedges along Highdown. The PC would like the hedges cut twice to maintain visibility up the narrows - once early in the year and once in early summer. Catch 22 now applies; the landowner will cut once in February, but the Single Farm Payment scheme makes a second cut illegal. He would not object to a second cut, but it is a County Council responsibility. Highways Department won't do it and the PC does not have the authority.

However, all is not lost - the Highways Department now had a budget for by-road improvements. Highways proposed to lay a short length of dual carriageway over Highdown, with a roundabout at Stockadon. This will be discussed at their next meeting on 1 April!. The Parish Council felt this might be excessive and had made a counter proposal to create a new layby half-way along the narrows. The landowner was willing to donate land, but the County Council's legal team immediately started seeing lots of lovely legal work. This topic will run and run - though reversing occasionally when it meets someone coming the other way!

Parish Council

Rosehill Nurseries development The Council has deferred a decision on the latest application to build houses on the old nurseries at Rosehill to allow further discussions between councillors and the developers. The Council has received an application 'in principle' to put a total of 12 houses on the site in two blocks: one of eight on the nursery site itself, the other for four houses on the site of the former engineering sheds below the nurseries. The applicants indicated that there would be a maximum of four affordable houses in the combined development. After Councillor Martin Worth (Chairman) had indicated that Cornwall Council was minded to approve building on the site, councillors agreed some sort of development was inevitable and desirable. However, there were issues with some aspects of the current proposals. It was felt a better scheme could be worked out. Councillor Worth said this was a very important site as it was at the 'gateway' to the parish. Councillor Phillip Braund, who was generally in favour of the proposals argued that the Parish wanted 'local needs' housing as well as 'affordable' homes. Councillor Marilyn Dennis suggested that more, smaller houses, suitable for elderly residents, would free up some of the larger family homes currently in single or double occupancy. There was concern that the development area, which occupied only part of the wider Rosehill Nurseries site, would lead, eventually, to all the land down to Church Lane being in-filled. It was felt conditions should be applied to make this impossible. Councillor Clare Tagg who generally supported the application, questioned whether it conformed to the Landulph Neighbourhood Plan. Only five units per site were permitted under the plan unless additional units were 'affordable'. Representing the developers, West Country Land and Development Ltd, Karim Ladhu said the 12-unit plans had been drawn up based on the comments of the Planning Inspector who had rejected the previous application on appeal. Mr Ladhu said he was happy to meet with councillors to resolve the development of this 'beautiful piece of land'. The Council had until 19 April to reach agreement with West Country Land and Development before the application was considered by Cornwall Council.

Power to the Cross! Recently there have been a several occasions when the Parish has wished to illuminate the Landulph Cross – Christmas, support for Ukraine, the Jubilee – and Councillor Worth had met with Western Power to investigate the permanent provision of an electricity supply there. Western Power said power could be provided in various ways, from a simple lighting plug (£1,500) to full 3-phase power suitable for fast-charging electric cars (£25,000). From this it emerged that full power was also available at the Hall which would be a better site for charging points. Discussions are on-going.

Speed limits A speed limit of 30mph from Wayton to the current 20mph limit has been approved by Cornwall subject to public consultation. Formal passing bays on the road up to Highdown are also being considered for the future.

Cricket Callington Cricket Club is keen to promote sports of all sorts on the Landulph cricket field, it was reported. It is considering starting a women's cricket team.

Parish Clerk, Katherine Williams, who has suffered from Covid-19, was unable to attend the meeting. The Newsletter wishes her a speedy recovery

Landulph School

What a fun filled day we have all had exploring numbers on Number Day. We spent time taking part in number activities – playing bingo, drawing pictures from numbers, number orienteering and number games. We also made number flowers, colouring my number and counting caterpillars. In March this was then followed with our incredible World Book

Day celebrations. I cannot believe it was the 25th Anniversary. Everyone joined together to take part in a catwalk! The children showed off their costumes with flare and flamboyance. After this, the children learnt about Julia Donaldson and were split into groups to do a range of activities focused on her books. It was lovely to see all different year groups working together and sharing ideas. It was great to see that the love of reading spreads across the whole school at Landulph.

The cross-country team have continued to perform incredibly well in recent races. Well done to all of the team who were able to take part in the Landrake Run. They did an amazing job of representing ourschool! We were also super proud to hear that Bella and Erica were selected to represent East Cornwall at the Cornwall School Games Primary Cross-Country Final. They had an amazing race and represented us in true Landulphian style!

Under fives

During January the children really enjoyed our transport topic and were very lucky to have one of our parents bring their tractor with a straw blower to Pre-school for a visit; the children loved pretending to drive it around the car park – see photo on the front cover. We went on an outing to visit Val at Grove Nurseries and collected eggs to make scrambled egg for our snack.

In February we celebrated Chinese New Year by learning about the twelve animals in the Zodiac calendar, eating noodles and prawn crackers at snack, decorating Chinese lanterns, painting numbers in Chinese and creating 3D tigers.

This half term we have been busy cooking pancakes for Shrove Tuesday, sharing our favourite books and designing our own book cover for World Book Day. We have also made pasties and flags for St Piran's Day.

Our new topic is about lifecycles and growth which we are looking forward to learning about and growing our own vegetables.

Preschool and Toddlers Play and Stay

Friday April 29 Band Night: Sadly we had to postpone Band Night for the second time as most of the committee were laid low by Covid but The MorZim have been very supportive and we plan to party on 29 April. Tickets are available on our Facebook page or text 07974199386£15.00 for a great night out to include proper refreshments (pasties!) Doors open at 7pm.

Volunteer

Preschool and Toddlers Play and Stay are looking for volunteers. Thursday Play and Stay would like some help on a Thursday morning and Preschool would like to find someone who could help out at short notice at times of staff sickness or when an extra pair of hands are needed.

If you think this would be something you can help us with do get in touch.

What future for Landulph Church?

Our Rector, Chris Painter, writes:

If you were the Chief Executive Officer (CEO) of a middle-sized company looking for new premises, what would be important? Optimum size? Comfort, for employees and visitors? Energy efficiency? Parking? Accessibility? Running water? A homeowner seeking to move might have a similar list.

So, if they were offered premises which were: way oversize, uncomfortable, monumentally energy inefficient, lacking parking, a mile from the nearest facilities, and without water, I wonder how eager they would be to grab this amazing piece of real estate!

You've probably realised by now that these undesirable features describe your local church! In which case, none of these matters are now important. What is important is the history of the building, wrapped up with the national and local cultural story. A significant place in the life events of the local community. A place of tranquillity and prayer. An open and public space in a world which is increasingly dominated by private and corporate ownership. A place of memories. A place of astonishingly beautiful architecture.

For hundreds of years the Church of England has used these buildings as the focus for faith and pastoral care. People would come for life events; baptisms, weddings and funerals. They came to mark the seasons, to express joy and grief. There was almost a contract; if the community maintained the fabric of the building, it would be there to meet the individual needs when the time came. At some point in the last century this contract collapsed. People come, yet the wider community has withdrawn from maintaining the life and fabric of the building. Those who believe the life and fabric should be maintained to serve the wider community are a shrinking number.

Further, they find themselves gathering in a place that is oversize, uncomfortable, expensive to heat, no parking, a distance from any community, and without water or toilets. And from time to time it requires eye-watering amounts of money for repairs and maintenance. I was told that to preserve a building 1% of the capital cost was required (some £20,000, a prohibitive amount) each year on maintenance. In addition they must fund running costs and pay the clergy.

Now, the answer is simple. Raise money! Hold events, apply for grants. Many churches have done this recently. But even applying for grants takes effort and energy. Managing a roof project takes effort and skill. And the congregation is getting smaller and more tired. Over time the whole business is becoming more unsustainable. In 10 years, what size will our congregations be, and who will undertake the fundraising required?

Our churches need to be sustainable. But they also need to be fruitful. The local church is not a historic building preservation society, but a community dedicated to spreading the Good News of Jesus; our buildings, however lovely, are a distraction from that.

Some in the community won't care - and aren't interested in where we worship. Many more, I suspect, will. Many in the villages are keen to fundraise to preserve the building. Sadly we are beyond that now. The fabric and life of the community can only be maintained by a sufficient gathering of people to share the load of making it all happen. Without that, be assured, in time our buildings will close.

Our man in Ukraine

We would like to introduce you to Antony Ledger (AKA Martello Swasp on Facebook). Anthony has lived in Cargreen for just over a year now and has recently returned from a week on the Polish-Ukraine border providing help to the refugees.

It started when Antony received a call from his good friend Steve while he was at work. He suggested they go to help with humanitarian aid. When he got home, he decided that this was something he could do, and immediately started planning the trip with his friend. His partner and his children were fully supportive of his decision.

They looked into hiring a lorry and driving over with essentials, but soon worked out that with the price of fuel, it would cost them so much that it wouldn't be the best option. So, they managed to get some very cheap flights, a not so great, but cheap hotel and they hired a minibus when they got to Poland. The cost of all this was covered by another friend! The aim was to raise money, then buy what was needed once they got to Poland as things were a lot cheaper there. They felt that doing this meant that 100% of the money raised went directly to the people who needed it the most.

On arrival at Medyka in south-eastern Poland, on the border with Ukraine, they were faced with many different organisations who were also there to offer support to the Ukrainian refugees and Polish volunteers. They gravitated towards a organisation called Godharmic and found out they were a humanitarian organisation from London. With advise from Godharmic they found out the current needs of the Ukranian refugees.

Fruit was the order of the day. Many people had not had any fresh produce for days, even weeks. Ukraine is a nation that normally has lots of fruit and vegetables in their diet. A local produce cash and carry was found and the mini-bus was loaded up with lots of fresh fruit. Another need was sleeping bags and blankets, so they purchased these and took them over for distribution. They worked 14-hour days delivering the fruit both to those in Poland as well as crossing into Ukraine to distribute it to organisations to take further into the country. There were around 8,000 refugees crossing the border from Ukraine to Poland every day, both day and night. They assisted many families cross, including a blind elderly lady, a young woman who had a 10-day-old baby, and another young woman with a baby and toddler who just couldn't carry her bags and the children anymore.

Antony and Steve have shown such empathy and commitment to help the people of Ukraine and Poland, they are an inspiration to all of us.

We all want to help as much as we can when we see situations like the war in Ukraine, but not all of us go to such the lengths. As a village we should be very proud to have such great people amongst us.

They will be making another journey over to Medyka on 4 April, and as they are now more familiar with how to help once they get there can make even more of an impact of the lives of thousands of people. They will be taking with them trauma kits this time to give to those treating the wounded.

How can we help as a Parish? We can donate to their funding by sending money via Paypal to martello31@hotmail.com

Winter Talks

Links to the presentations from our winter talks on 'Our Future in the Tamar Valley' and 'Saving Energy' are now on our web page: www.landulph.org.uk/climateaction.php.

The talks were full of useful information; we liked the energy saving tips from Community Energy Plus and the children of Landulph School.

An infographic shaped like a house, divided into rooms. The top section is the roof, containing a clock and a computer. The middle section is the main living area, containing a list of 10 energy-saving tips. The bottom section is the base of the house, containing contact information for Community Energy Plus. The background of the house is a collage of various household items and scenes.

Top 10 Tips For Lower Energy Bills

- 1 Save around 25% by switching from a variable to fixed price energy tariff (check out www.communityenergyswitch.org.uk)
- 2 Turn off lights when not needed and upgrade to LED light bulbs
- 3 Make sure that your loft, cavity walls and hot water cylinder are insulated
- 4 Wash your clothes at 30°C and try to dry outdoors as much as you can
- 5 Switch off appliances at the plug instead of leaving them on standby
- 6 Seal up draughts around doors and windows, gaps around the floor, or through unused chimneys
- 7 Set your water thermostat to 60°C. If it's higher you're wasting money!
- 8 When you make a cuppa, only boil the amount of water needed
- 9 Pop a lid on saucepans and use the right sized pan for the job
- 10 Close your curtains at dusk and make sure that heat from radiators can circulate through the room

Gardening Club and the Jubilee

The Gardening Club has big plans for the Queen's Platinum Jubilee celebrations. It will be planting seeds and making posies and has received a £80 grant from the Parish Council. The money will be used for topsoil and containers for planting around the Landulph Cross, cricket field gateway and at the Fore Street/Coombe Lane junction. In addition the Club wants the parish to take part in a 'flash flower event' says Jane Espig. 'Soon it will be time to plant up pots for the garden. Why not plant up a few more to put outside the front of your house. Red, white and blue would be symbolically correct but any flowers would be much appreciated. After the Jubilee weekend the pots can go back in your garden'.

No Mow May

When we decided to take the plunge, and go with the current thinking on lawns from the R.H.S. and my 'go to gardening guru' Monty Don, it was not without some trepidation .

Man has always been driven by a desire to control his environment and the English are a nation renowned for neat and tidy gardenswhat would people think ?

I have long been an advocate of gardening for wildlife and as it is usually me that mows the front lawn it seemed like a win win .We didn't want to alarm our neighbours too much by thinking we may have gone totally bush and had just left it so we cut a path from the gap in the hedge to the front door . The interest and comments we received in the Summer months ranged from the curious to the damn right cheeky but we persevered and I'm so pleased we did .

The wealth of wildlife that appeared was incredible ,five species of British bee nearly every grasshopper and cricket that resides here ,numerous butterflies and insects half of which I had to research to identify ,it was a cornucopia of biodiversity and it hummed with life . August is the time to cut and it was suggested we use a scythe this gave Mr.P. a chance to learn a new skill and he took a course with a master of the art, I had suggested buying him a white frilly shirt and some breeches but he balked at that . Leaving the grass on top for a day or two allows the seeds to fall enabling the whole circular process to start again. The hay which we collected was a bounty, we used it for our hedgehog houses ,mulch around plants and much more .The benefits of not having to mow the lawn ,the increase in biodiversity and the aesthetic value of grasses swaying in the breeze with the soundscape of thousands of insects buzzing and clicking made the whole exercise worthwhile .

Will I embrace No Mow May this year ? Definitely.
And if you wander past Coombe Park in August and see a man in a frilly shirt and breeches with a scythe you'll know why .

Our Vera (our Toyota van)

She was spotted unloved and abandoned, behind a tree at Bohetherick, on the road to Cotehele. We rescued her and she has become our pride and joy and you may see her around the parish.

In the February storms, Eunice ripped some lead off our roof as we walked out the house and crowned our Vera, instead of ourselves.

Jeff and Stella, and Dan the dog, from Stockaton Villa

Vera the Van

Jeff, Stella and Dan
Off in Vera the Van.
They gave her a scrub,
Painted each hub,
Then off in Vera the Van.
To avoid indecision,
And maybe collision
They're taking Vera the van.
They'll go to a Fayre,
Try everything there.
Then off in Vera the Van.
Might go to the sea,
Or just visit me.
Then off in Vera the Van.
But they had to retreat,
Jeff's cooking some meat.
Straight home in Vera the Van.

The Parish Council is trialling regular emails to parishioners who have signed up to the Parish Council email list. Initially, an email will be sent once a month but if anything urgent crops up an additional email may be sent.
